Advice to Democrats. From the N. Y. Evening Post. The Democratio journals, which are easily made happy, are rejoicing all over the country that their party has not been so badly beaton as usual in the fall elec-With the indomitable spirit of t having somewhat reduced the majority at having somewhat reduced the majority of the Republicans in Congress as though they had gained a great victory; and everywhere announce the dissolution of the Republican party, just as during the late war Southern and Northern Demogratic newspapers, used to receive he in atic newspapers used to promise the imnediate success of the Confederate cause benever the rebels had seized an outost or repulsed an attack of the Union oops.

It must be evident, however, to sensible Democrate that the Republican party, which has in its time borne a considerable number of such minor defeats, shows no power; it has just secured a majority in Congress for the next two years; and in spite of some blunders unworthy of a party in progress it has yet the sympathy and confidence of the people.

But, Democrats say, the Republicans are divided upon the important questions of public policy; and these Democrats seem to expect that that wing of the Republican party which favors Revenue ower; it has just secured a majority in Congress for the next two years; and in spite of some blunders unworthy of a party in progress it has yet the sympathy and confidence of the people.

But, Democrats say, the Republicans are divided upon the important questions of public policy; and these Democrats seem to expect that that wing of the Republican party which favors Revenue and Civil Service reform will go off to the Democratic side.

Democratic side. We advise no Democrat to cheat himself with such a fancy. The Republican Revenue Reformers and Civil Service Reformers do not mean to leave the Ropub-

Hoffman, Pendleton, Voorhees, Vallandig-ham, and such men who lead and control the Democratic organization. They would not feel at home in such company.

Nor do the leading Republican Rovenue and Civil Service reformers see any present need of attempting the formation of a new party. They believe it to be easier, and on the whole better, to do what they have both the right and power to do, assume the control of the Republican organ ization-which belongs to them by right coal, salt, lumber and pig iron monopolists. They are prepared to show that Gen. But-upon no public policy, and demanded an unnecessary war with England.

But, if this is the policy of the Republican Revenue Reformers, what is the plain duty of the Democratic Civil Service and Revenue Reformers? Is it not to join their natural allies in the Republican party, and with them fight out the good fight under the Republican flag? What better can they do? They can ler was wrong when, in an insidious at-tempt to demoralize and divide the party, he recently declared that it was agreed hardly hope to control their own party, which is now, as it has been for many years, bound hand and foot, and comman ed by the Hoffmans, Pendletons and Vallandighams -men who have no more political principle than was shown in their adoption of a protectionist plank in their last national platform, and in their trifling with the national credit and honor in spite of all the efforts of the true Democrats who or all the enerts of the true Democrats who still cling to their party.

They cannot hope to control their own party; and even if they could, the country seeing that it can get from the Republican party all the reform that it needs, will not employ the Democratic party, which is fatally tainted with disloyalty which is the way, whose leaders here instituted.

during the war; whose leaders have justly lost the respect of the country by pandering to every political vice; by their cynical disregard of morality and humanity; v their demicrogrical arts in relation to the emans, the Chinese, the Catholies and the liquor dealers.

The American people do not forget that mocratic leaders, who would have sacrificed the Union in 1861; who opposed the war four years, and put every obstacle in the way of our soldiers; and who, as the British Minister reported to his government, secretly courted British intervention, have since then attempted to destroy the national oredit and roo the hundreds of thousands of poor depositors in savings banks, by paying the bonds in greenbacks; have at the same time encouraged and aided the attacks of certain Roman Catholic bigots upon the common school system; have everywhere shows of themselves the defenders of bullesness of a the way of our soldiers; and who, as themselves the defenders of lawlessness, of corruption at elections, of unlicensed liquor selling; in short the supporters of every-thing that is rotten or dangerous to liberty among us. If the people could get needed reforms nowhere else, they would prob-ably hesitate long and endure much before they would trust their government to the Democratic leaders. But when it is certain that the Revenue and Civil Service

Reformers will control the Republicar party, and can organize the next Congress t is not even remotely probable that the cople will choose a Democratic adminis-We say, then, that it is the duty of he friends of Ravenue and Civil Service reform now in the Democratic party to abundon that organization—from which no practical good can be hoped—join their natural allies, the Republican Revenue and Civil Service References, and carry out these and other needed reforms under the name? It was the first and proudest name of the old Democratic party. Not only this; but the Reformers in the Republican party are the very men who, be-cause they were true Democrats, were driven out of the Democratic organization when that fell into the hands of a parcel of old Whigs, who used it to foster slavery The friends of Civil Service and Reve nue reform are the true Republicans, who have inherited the doctrines of Jersterson and Silas Wright; and it is the duty of all who believe with them, who desire an eco nomical and honest administration, who wish for reforms in taxation, and the civil service, who desire our free schools to prosper, our elections to be pure, vice to be restruined and crime to be punished by ound laws faithfully executed—it is the duty of all such, now, to join the Republi-can ranks, to swell the powers of Reformers who have just gained so great a victory, and who mean hereafter to control New York Market the Republican organization, and use it or the benefit of the people.

Republican banner
Why not? Is "Republican" a bad

> Carrier Pigeons and Falcons in War. From the Turf, Field and Farm, Nov 11th. A cable telegram informs us that Prussia, in besieging the capital of France has revived on old custom. The Paris ians employ carrier pigeons in holding communication with the outside world and to destroy this line of communication we are told that the Prussians have called trained hawks into their service. The origin of falconry, or "hawking, is traced back to the middle of the fourth century." It was once the favorite pastime of the nobility on the Continent and in England and there was a time in France when the King never rode out on any occasion of consequence without being attended by his falconier, who was an officer of emihis falconier, who was an officer of emi-nence. In warlike days this exclusive aport, was often patronised by the com-manders of the forces. Froissart informs us that when Edward III, invaded France he had with his army thirty falconiers on horseback, whose sole duty was to look af-ter the hawks. The King, when weary of the bustle of camp, would ride out into the forests and fields with an except, and with the aid of his hawks indulge in the olessures of the chase. But Bismarck, we pleasures of the coase. But Besiners, we believe, has been first to bring falconry to practical use in time of war. There was no way to stop the return slight of carrier pigeons taken out of Paris by belloon but by calling to his assistance trained hawkr.

had a hawk which escaped from Fontain-bleau, and in 24 hours after was found in Malta, a space of not less than 1,350 miles Now, as the falcon does not fly by night, and if we allow eighteen hours for day-light, we have a velocity of seventy-five light, we have a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour. The allowence of daylight is probably too much, still it is better to under estimate rather than to over estimate the performance. The flight of the pigeon is also long and rapid, but not equal to that of the hawk. While the one will do its hundred miles in comething like two hours, the other will accomplish the distance in about an hour and a quarter.

The pigeon will communicate only one way. It has a strong instinctive love of home, and when carried from home and set free, if the distance is not more than five hundred miles, will swiftly return to the old nest. Man takes advantage of this feeling, and by entrusting messages to the birds brought from home he rests assured that each message will safely be delivered to friends left behind. An English writer tells us: "The courage and love of home of any of these birds is so remarkable that good old birds, if kept in confinement and bred from for sitting on eggs. This is commonly done, because it is well known to be a strong tie because it is well known to be a strong tie to the bird, and prevents all but good ones from leaving; but as soon as he has satis-fied himself that his home is to be regained he has rushed in to the hen, drove her off that genius has no country. I think that, when America does produce anything fine it would be forgotten in the glamour of the nest and out; and both have sailed away together. Frequently, after a long absence the bird finds its old home pulled down, its former owner having removed It will then hang about the place, resisting all the efforts of the other pigeor keepers to catch it by getting it to settle with their birds and enticing it with food into their traps. It will in some cases starve to douth, and often becomes so weak that if it flies down into the street in search of food it is too exhausted to fly un, and is taken in the hand. When such bird appears at a place in this way, ization—which belongs to them by right of their principles—and carry that party to further victories. That is what the Republican Reformers can do and will do. They will have the hearty sympathy for the people with them in putting down the coal, salt, lumber and pig iron monopolists.

They are prepared to show that Gen. Buttle of the proper of the property of the strain. Sometimes the bird, finding its homo gone, will return to the place from which it has been let out, mostly on the second, but even on the third day after. The experienced pieces here the true to the place from the property of the experienced pieces. The experienced pigeon keeper lets it rest for a day or two, entices it with a little hemp seed, and again lets it out early in the morning. It is nearly sure to leave again, but does not stop so long, and re-turns before night fall. It is then lot out daily, and its visits to its old home con-stantly decrease, until after a few days hey coase altogether."

Belgium pigeon flying is a national amuse-ment, and if we want the best birds we must go to that country for them. Pigin war, but the perfection of the signal corps has nearly superseded them. Still there are many cases—such as the siege of Paris, for instance-where the signal corps Paris, for instance—where the signal corps is powerless, while pigeons are employed to advantage. In times of sieges these home-loving birds are the best depend-ence. History tells us that when "Modene was besieged, Brutus, within the walls, kept an uninterrupted correspondence with Hirtius without, and this by the assistance of pigeons; setting at naught every stratagem of Antony to stop these winged couriers." Trochu, at Paris, has winged couriers." Trochu, at Paris, has been following in the steps of Brutus, but Bismarck, if we may believe the dispatches, has devised a plan to outwit the French. With his trained hawks he will be able to stop the flight of many a pigeon treighted with important dispatches from the government at Tours to the head of the Department of Defence cooped up, in Paris. There will be no fierce battles in the clouds since the trusty messengers of the French will not be able to offer resistance against the strong beak and sharp talons of the falcon. But it will require a sharp look-out on the part of the invaders to discover all the pigeons let loose in Tours in time to successfully direct against them the trained hawks of the Prussian camps. We thus see war reviving the customs of past. The use of carrier pigeons calls for the use of falcons, and hereafter trained birds promise to play an important part in every prominent siege. Nilsson.

LIVELY ACCOUNT OF HER FROM KATE

THELD-"HER-SMILE." From the Chicago Times. She is fair. Blonde hair, a tall, supple vell-covered figure, fine teeth, and a nice y shaped head are her external personal ifts. Her face, when in repose, is not protty. Deeply-sunken eyes and high check bones are not compatable with beauty, but Mademoiscile

NILSSON'S SMILE IS HER FORTUNE.

NILSSON'S SMILE IS HER FORTUNE. one cent per pound for the curd, a pound It sends susceptible young men—and of which is worth, as food, at least as much their name is legion—into spasms of de-light. It charms young and old of both sexes, and though Nilsson did not open her mouth she would make many friends. Her personality is her chief attraction. She is uncommonly graceful, her walk is fine, her carriage erect, her dressing as beautiful as the best Parisian modiste can make it. She takes the audience into her confidence, which, however questionable as a matter of taste, adds greatly to her popularity. She has a perfect aplomb, knows herself thoroughly, and makes the most of her talents, which have been do not say of Nilson, as must be said of most American artists, "She might be much better if she had this and that advantage." Nilsson has had every possible opportunity, and has left no fallow ground. She is as good as Nilsson can be.

remarkable for power or great compass, weak and even harsh in the low register, but sympathetic and beautiful in the higher notes. It has a caressing quality graceful to the ear as velvet is to the touch, and her mezzo voce. which is her strong point, produces the effect of a lovely dream. When Nilsson forces her voice, dream. as is her frequent custom, in grand arise, it loses its sweetness, and the Swede besomes like many another singer. As to voice and as a 'vocalist Nilsson is in no way comparable with Parepa. When she sings Parepa's songe, as for example, Gound's "Sercuade" and "Ave Marie,"

You ought not attempt to anke a forcible swap with her unless your conscience would justify you in it, and you know you are able to do it.

In the classical, also, Nilsson does not shine for a perfect rendering of Beethoven's "Ah Perfield," in r sofficiently honest sentiment for contains. ocatorio. Her rendering of "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" produces great of fect upon the general public for the reason ent she adapts Ha del to Nileson not Nilsson to Handel. It is so interpreted as to display her mezzo voice, and de-light with voice drowns criticism of the style. In "Faust," "Linda," "Lucia," and operas of similar calibre, she must be very interesting-not that she is likely to display great passion or intensity, but she ought to give you a winning personality, and a simulation of ramatic fervor that passes for the reality The best thing Nilsson has done so far is the mad scene from Ambrose Thomas opera of "Hamlet." Her wierd grace and northern coloring eminently fit her for Ophelia and on this account Thomas selected her to fill this role. The figure and appearance of Cavalho, a better artist, were not adapted to the poetic situation, and, in despair Thomas went to the Theatre Lyrique, and secured the services of the Swedish prim: donna. To her success in "Hamlet" Nils son owes her present fame. There are those who pronounce her mad scene the first piece of lyric acting seen in America for years. I cannot feel that myself. I is exceedingly well done, but with a fresh memory of Adelaide Phillips in the secand act of "Travatore" and the last act of "La Favorita" I see fat greater dramatic power in the American contralto than in he Sweedish soprano, and, while believing

Agricultural. MULK RUTTER AND CHEESE AS AN ARTICLE

From the Syracuse Journal.

There is, perhaps, no cheaper method of utting the nutritive elements into a diputting the nutritive elements into a di-gestible form than in the production of nilk. In milk we have all the elements needed in food, and in the right and pro per proportions. The butter supplies car-bon, which combines with the exygen of the air we breathe to supply heat. In curd of the milk is contained all the elements needed to supply force or strength, by making good the waste of the brain, muscles, bones, liver, lungs, etc., etc. The human body may be called a muchine for the production of force, and to generate force, the body must be warmed, but warmth alone is not sufficient. Our ancestors used butter to secure warmth, and in addition, they used in one form or another, and to a considerable ex-tent, the curd of the milk. Their dethey coase attogether."

France was poorly supplied with carrier pigeons at the breaking out, of the war, but it appears that she has been making the best use of what she can command. In seendents use butter so extravagantly as to make it cost them more than their bread, while they discard the curd as fit only for hogs, or while they discard the curd as fit only for hogs, or export it in the form of cheese, to give strength to the workers and thinkers of Ehrope. The rank or influence of a man depend the rank or influence of a man depends (other things being equal) upon his physical or intellectual performances, and for ability to perform he depends upon vigor, which is supplied by food; hence it may be said, as a man's food is nutritious, or otherwise, so is his ability to distinguish himself among his fallow, we and this is himself among his fellow men, and this is rue, not only of individuals, but of com munities. Our ancestors, because they used a larger proportion of the curd o milk, were less dyspeptic, and stronger both physically and intellectually, than we. The Holland Dutch, because they use the curd of the milk as well as the butter, have strong stomachs, and have accomplished results, to which, taking resources into account, there is no paralle n the history of the world. It is commonly supposed by Americans pation, but these complaints are almost entirely unknown in communities whe cheese forms a prominent article of diet As the stomach of a man who has been for ome time wholly deprived of nutriment may be so weak as not to be able to receive wholesome and easily digested food, so the stomachs of many Americans are weak-ened by the use of improper food until they become incapable of digesting cheese Lactic acid, or the acid of milk, is one of the most effective aids to digestion that can be taken into the stomach.

that can be taken into the stomach. During my investigations, which have extended over a period of over twenty-five years, I have never found an individual who had habitually from childhood used buttermilk, our skimmed milk, or sour milk cheese, who suffered to any extent from dyspepsia, and such persons are not only dyspepsia, but are free from the thousand and one weaknesses from which Americans suffer so much, and which Americans suffer so much, and which oblige them to patronize doctors, drug-gists and quack medicine makers to an extent never before witnessed in this world, and I hope in no other.

In the feeding of sour milk to hogs, the dairymen do not realize more than about few who are not fond of it. That it is chear food, is evident from the use made of it b the Germans, who are rigidly economics in their dict. A company of Germans in Philadelphia manufacture what they call hand chees from the curd of sour milk which they

DECEMBER PANSIES.- "Seek roses in December, ice in June," ironically exclaimed the poet. Well here they are, a bunch of fresh violets gathered from the lawn and garden of Judge Chase, on the 3d of December, in all their glorious beauty, clothed in purple, seated on thrones of emerald, enchroaded in an atmosphere of fragrance to whose exquisite aweetness no words can give expres sion. If the present delightful weather continues we may expect a full procession of flowers springing forth full blown, and colonizing for the approaching summer.

OFFICIAL GALLANTRY .- In New York a detachment of the handsomest and strongest policemen on the force may daily be seen conveying ladies across Broadway Not to be outdone in official gallantry, we observe that Chief of Police Rouse and officer Miller have adopted the same practice on the arrival of the railroad trains carrying the lady passengers one after another across that "Slough of Despond" known as Mechanic street. These obliging gentlemen, however, slyly insinuate that lady passengers are largely on the increase though we don't see why a good looking official in brass coat and blue buttons should object to that.

whether there was any use in trying to get her out. She was dead when her body was recovered, but the city is not hanged for murder. Donkey's flesh ranks very high among the new species of food adopted by the be neged Parisians. It is said to resemble veal, with a poultry flavor. The two children of Mr. Hanson, who were lost at Two Rivers, Minnesota, on the 6th inst., while hunting for cows, have been given up for dead, and the search abandoned.

The greatest joiner—the lawyer. He can place a tenant, empannel a jury, box a can place a tenant, empanner a jury, lox a witness, bore the court, chisel a client, augur the gains, floor a witness, cut his board, nail his case, hammer the desk, file his bill, and shave a whole community.

A writer in one of the religious journals says: "It is unfortunate for many excellent schemes for the improvement of the burnan condition that the Creator when he made man endowed him with so large a proportion of human nature. A conductor on the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railway, while the train was running at its full speed, shot and killed a quail on the wing, at a distance of about 50 feet, with a small Derringer pistol. A good story is told of a railway station agent in New Hampshire, who on being reprimanded for allowing a car to be so heavily loaded that it broke down, replied,

"Mr. G., what do you expect a man to know for $20 per month?"

A faccinating ex-Colonel of volunteers was arrested in Kentucky last week by a Shoriff's officer just as he was about to lead to the altar a rich widow, who had been induced to believe that he was the owner of immense estates in New York and Missouri.

Gravelotte, a recent visitor says, is a scene of indescribable desolation. The heights occupied by the French are still strewn with accourrements and COOKING STOVES, clothes; the fields are deeply rutted with the wheels of artillery, and dotted all over with little mounds where the dead are ouried, and the whole is a perfect quagmire of mud. One had only to see the ground from which the Germans drove the French to understand that troops which could not hold such a posi could never cut their way out or The artesian salt well of Lincoln, Ne braska, throws a stream of brine six inches in diameter to a height of over fifty

Cannot afford to be without them I These Grates have stood the test of seven year actual use, and are adopted by the most promi-nent manufacturers and navigation companies Read the following letter from B. E. Moreland we have not yet lost a single of warping of warping. Their advantages to us, in economizing fuel, ease of management and superior durability, warrant us in recommending them as fully up, if not superior, to the merits claimed for them. We would use no other. Truly yours, B. E. MORELAND, & CO.

The substitution of this Grate will generally enable the consumer to raise sufficient heat with nut coal, or even slack, when formerly the best lump was necessary; when, tan, bark, sawdisst, etc., is burned it will be found on trial to be almost indispensible. No change in bearers required in any furnace. All orders will receive prompt attention.
